FOREWORD

We are the students: raw material for the Process. We are not all the same. We run from high to low the gamut of this Middle Class. Our gentilesse opens swinging doors all day. Our patterned reluctance classifies unhinged portals shut. We are an instant mix of youth and age. We can smear our youngness on a slide, and in one grey-knot word, reveal the paradox. We have the time of Dei in ticking clocks—we do not know it. We, smiling, show our backgrounds—politely, without feeling them.

We are not all the same. We come from suburbs of sophistication, from great hubs of industry, some few from farms. Some even come from the vanished frontier, some from the northern side of the cherished line of fission, and some from the capitals of the world, where, too, wars were fought and lost. But most of us come from towns and cities of the South. We come from where old women in lavender on shaded verandas still like to turn funny French names with their tongues, and peer from behind satin window sashes down the brick streets of the mind.

But we are not the same. We are several different things in groups, and many when alone. And the editors of this annual felt that something of what we are could be threaded through this fixed eye, and in these words. Look for something here that for four years or one has been you.

FRESHMEN

We came here young,
But not so young as boys
Who talk to pigeons in a park.
Nor were we then as young
As twigs of the February sun
That snap in March
But we were just as young as April saplings green
That pay the standing price in June for bark.

FRESHMEN

Our dorm was the kind of house you laugh in after twelve o'clock at night. Each floor was a family to plot against with water bombs and lighter fluid under the doors, or reach into with talk on the naked first-floor level of thought, before the second-story words of walking-away are learned, before indifference becomes both game and score. And on afternoons of rain, when you stop to hear the radiators knock, our dorm was the kind of crowded house you were free to be alone in—and wonder why they didn't speak back.

. . . nor were we often alone. We sought acceptance from the older versions of ourselves, who smiled approval across a table as we swallowed hard from the cold and sweaty cans . . . From the jukebox the voice of the French woman sang, Je vais changer, milord—my mister, I will change.

Then sometime in the spring we wondered if we had faces of our own. Who are we? we asked the crowd. You are one of us, they answered. And we knew next year we would be those who had been here before.

The Elections Board: Who's voting this year? Everybody's running.

Members of the Student Council are seated, Pete Wyrick, George Trask, Henry Shue, Tyree Finch, Verner Stanley, Ben Sparks. Standing: Nat Watson, Ken Kelley, John Packer, Hutton Barron, Jack Taylor, Jerry Busseil, Jimmy Gee, Bill Wallace and John Kilian.

I'm not sure I understand the question.

This organization is little more than the expression of the energies, ideals, and desires of the individuals who compose it. Rarely in its history are there years when the president's efforts consistently confront its members with the purposes for which they avowed a concern. This has been such a year. Perhaps it is more than coincidence that the leader of the council shared virtually none of the economic or sociological traits which bless the background of the typical Davidson gentleman. Whether such determinants are valid factors or not, it is no secret to anyone that one of the strong factors in the mysterious fiber of Henry Shue, is just his simple honesty.

By our Galilean's enigmatic ethic, we are, none of us, honorable men. We do not ask for absolutes of love; we ask only for honorable order. You are free to hate one another and stay. But if you happen to cheat or steal, we must send you away. This is the way of jurisprudence. This is the judge's song. And so, Emily, for all of us, honor is its own pawn.

In the beginning, in 1837, education spread to the Southland. A quarter of a century later, the warring hordes from Princeton towns, maddened in their envy, descended to regain their preeminence. In the throes of the Great War, the gentle culture fell. But still its loyal sons, undaunted, came to Davidson. In those unsettled post-war years, the traditions of the See of Learning almost collapsed a second time at the hands of the new barbarians. But in 1923 the southern survivors of the latest concept in war finally tore themselves away from Paris and rushed home to save their Maver from ruin. These hardened veterans of the bistro, doubtless under the influence of the French variety of justice, founded the Davidson Court. From that historic day to the present the Court has been defining itself in a series of divine fiats. This year it is a service club: building freshman unity by giving them something to unify against. In the face of recent challenge, they still

In the spring of 1960 we wrote our thoughts in the white profusion of the flowers. But in the fall, our memories fed on glass to know again that smell. Soon we felt the stunted days fleeing us like eyeless dwarfs. The metal eyes would not click fast enough. Words came with the maddening caution of saints. Deadlines began to live up to their name. But we took this year and give it the color of our many different selves. When time to wait was all we had, we only hoped to wonder at the crocus through the snow.

DAVIDSONIAN We, too, are not every man. We are some things for some men. But we have tried to define those things. We are not the voice of Davidson College; we are the voice of those speaking to be heard beyond our madras walls. We do not sell sugar lumps for patronizing tongues. We sow the opinions of our minds in holocausts, and search the fire for signs. And, poet, if there are a few dead minds in high places, we have learned the price of their disfavor.

Cleveland Playhouse in

Charlotte Symphony

News Analyst
Richard C. Hottelet

The last curtain falls, and we, the unsought muses, pay our respects to the dead: We have not come to praise, but to bury. His life was ennui, and the talents so mixed in him that his critics might stand up and say to all the world this was an artist series! Ah, yes, we remember him well . . . the arias Natalie Bodanya never came here to sing . . . the speech famed analyst Hottelet somehow never gave . . . The National Grass Roots falsettos' sophisticated farce . . . ah yes, we remember him well . . . And from our present vagabondage, we muses solemnly admit, his life was long supported by involuntary benefits.

In the gloom of Chamber's basement the practice hours peel from the days as inglorious summer leaves that trunk ward drip, impatient for the autumn wind. Then in the swish of an opening curtain and the tap of a baton, the separate talents fuse into the rush and fall of a symphony. The patient, sun turned leaves, pushed into the wind at the tactile ends of twigs, feel the regarded fall.

MALE CHORUS We stayed south in the fall to sing in the college loft. We wore our august robes and sang from sacred music. When spring came, riding north with the mocking birds, we stripped to trim tuxedos for the New York City Alumni, and sang that secular music. But in or out of the provinces, "Daddy Don's" wit and Covington's devoted insanity somehow trimmed the aesthete's hair.

BUSINESS-ECONOMICS ASSOCIATION

We are the latent financiers—the heirs of polished desks.
We talk the unclogged hours on the economics of disarmament and the peril of U. S. gold. In our aspen youth we think of communes in the peoples' republics of the world. But tomorrow in our packaged age, we hiss the ill of "isms" and plant our own wheat in the summer.

SPANISH CLUB

When the words of Hemingway and Faulkner are read, or the tune of a gay fandango is heard, you are not in a chair, to be sure, sitting lower than the shoulder pads of society's elite. Through the window, with the heat of the sun on your face and her hair, leap from the printed page.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

We live this solid American dream of beer in cans, sermons, and ice cream, and try to know the Cuban worker's dreams, and try to hear the far-off Muslim chant. We walk our concrete streets and look into the shiny criss-cross sky, and try to see the knees bent on grass mats, and hunger swollen bellies burst inside. We drink our world of instant juice and swallow twice to taste the Asian's stuffed pith in at his mother's inflamed teats. We visualize split atoms' end to all these worlds, and try to tease away, one patterned thread to break the cur-

Countess Aurelia in her taffeta skirt talked away years of afternoons on the cafe terrace at Chez Francis on the place de l'Alma in Paris. She tossed lilies into the sewer and didn't know the world had changed. But one day the ragpicker told her about the invasion of

All of the faceless exploiters of men vanished down her circular stairs beneath the moving stone . . . This was only the story of a play, but we, too, were to break the faceless postures of indifference and thus studied reluctance to feel. SOPHOMORES

We sat in the Pierian Spring and became the master-singers of educated lingo. From the sacred drawing room assortment, we purchased those eyes that see precisely what is sharp. We pantomined the movements of our tribes, but discreetly did not ask who we were. Unanimously we anointed ourselves the most likely to be in an upper class.

Though we learned to study selectively for grades, the walks we took somewhere behind our eyes were not so straight as the steps of our measured strides. This year we properly chose our friends from our brothers under the pin, and our dorms became only the kind of house you take a room in, and know the others there by the labels on their doors and the telephone calls they sometimes get. On days that only absurdly followed days before, like unmarked footprints on frozen ground, we asked the sores we scooped into the shallow snow to tell us how a quick life flows—the life that is said to be for men.

Spring came
To the pink fringe on trees
In the half-light
After the sun.
In dreams
We prematurely
Breathed the air
The next two years
Would burn.
The moment's look
At the grey hooks
We threw into tomorrow
Made the night
Grow slowly strange.
We wondered then
What decisive solvent
Could fold the rain
Into the iridescent street,
To drive
The sliding fragments
Of too many world views
Into one discernible shape.

Struggling in August heat, plowing in September rain, or sweating in November winds made us more determined for victory, for we knew that apathy was the only prize for defeat. Student opinion was a tremendous hurdle, that lack of feeling, which like a river, just kept rolling along. But we let it flood in its inexorable, irresistible way, to other lands, for we had our victory at V. P. I., and the students felt, too, it was one of our rarest hours in the Sports panorama of 1960. At last the students cheered for victory and the moral colossus of yesteryear began to crumble.

SOCCER

Subtlety of movement, speed, agility, and ball control plus our own brand of body contact helped amass the finest soccer record in Davidson's history.

All-Southern Mike Laughlin steals ball in one of the team's finest defensive executions that sparked the play all season.

Victories over Duke, N. C. State, and V. M. I. highlighted a tremendous season darkened only by a loss in overtime to Carolina. All American Claude Finney and All Southern players Laughlin and Dalton led the way.

Backfield players are Winsor, Dalton, Keiter, McCaslin, Lane, Grimsley, Mayerhofer, Welford, Pharr and Saffley.

There is no charged, exuberant atmosphere of other sports where the crowd is close and noisy. It's a long outdoor race run with a certain stately dignity in which runners compete in a silent, withdrawn and introspective world. Conscious only rarely of other runners, Martin, Eckbert, and Gilmore, aided the team to a 7-2 record, third in the State Meet and fifth in the conference.

CROSS COUNTRY

WRESTLING

Learning how to pin, not to maim one's man, the grapplers spend hours in a sultry atmosphere preparing for every match. The intimate, small oval of the rubber mat with the crowd close makes it impossible for the wrestler to retire to a secret world. With each sharp and straining movement concentration molds the wrestler's face as he waits in the momentary stillness that comes before his catlike move. Team members Trask, Barger and Brown grappled their way to recognition at the conference meet, with Thompson, LeDoyen and Wray aiding us to a 5-5 season.

Capt. Cliff Thompson and Coach Parker.

BASKETBALL

Coach Lefty Driesell knew the picture: Davidson basketball was mired in mediocrity, and had fumbled to a sad conclusion one year prior to his arrival. He came to reshape the incongruous, chaotic, and variegated jumble known as the Davidson basketball team. Though he knew it might be a nightmarish season, he took control with a firm hand and began a new regime.

In the opening quarry against nationally ranked Wake Forest, Markee sank 25, and the team traveled back to the A. C. with a 69-59 defeat. Catawba and V. M. I. then embarrassed the Wildcats, 54-52 and 72-68, but Jarrard, only a sophomore, led the Davidson scorers in both games. V. P. I. remembering an earlier season, a different sport, gained revenge to the score of 105-59. Catawba hardly helped the morale as they walked away with a 62-58 victory. Furman won 52-61 and was runner-up in the Southern Conference. William and Mary split titles, winning 49-54, then losing 54-45.

Danny Carrell dribbles through Wake Forest defenders, Alie Hart and Norman Sneed.

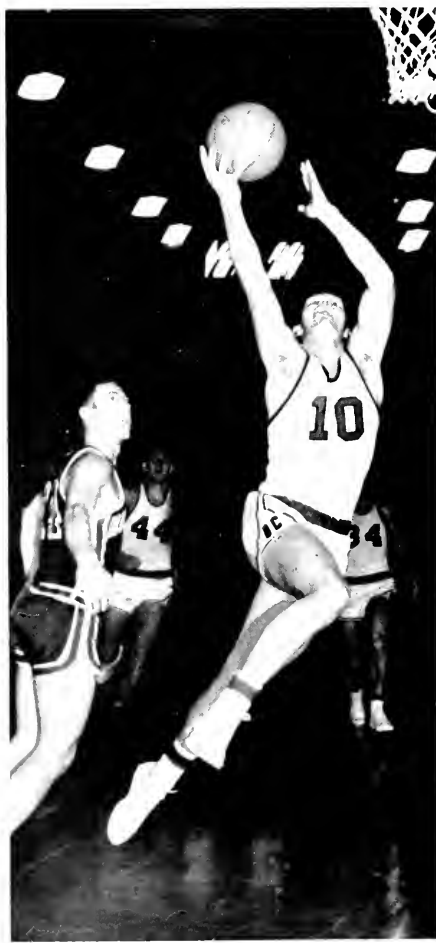

Clemson defeated us 63-74, while Erskine lost 70-63, and The Citadel edged by 74-73 . . . Shinn showed his old form with 19 points, but to no avail as Richmond escaped 78-83 . . . Wofford fell 72-65, as did Pfeiffer 66-56, V. M. I. 88-79, and Pfeiffer again 79-72 as Markee and Jarman burned the nets . . . Richmond stomped 90-77 even though Shinn hit 24 . . . V. P. I. stumbled but survived 72-79 . . . Furman squeaked out 71-70 while Erskine lost 77-58 for the Cats' final victory . . . Fighting for the last berth in the Southern Conference tournament, the Cats fell 64-88 to The Citadel.

Leading scorer Markee seems to dance with opponent during tap-in play.

Panded Nuckolls does a war dance.

Amazing sophomore Jarman averaged 15 points a game.

it was an "almost" season but "almost" was not enough, and Davidson ended in last place with a 1-14 conference record. Statistics don't prove much as far as winners and losers go but we lost six of those ten conference games, by a total of 22 points. Two of the losses had been by one point, to Furman and The Citadel. Two other losses to Catawba were decided by 2 and 4 points. It was a tough season, but still there prevailed a winning attitude, a new thing as far as basketball was concerned.

Co-captain Jim Nuckolls

Bussell and Jarman watch Markee add another two pointer.

SWIMMING

Championship swimmers are those athletes who jealously refuse to share the waking hours of other sportsmen with any but most essential activities. Life in a monastery would seem almost prodigal by comparison. To meet the rigorous schedule everything else must be secondary. But this year we were not champions.

Whittington is perfecting his form as Rose watches from the side of the pool

It is not difficult to understand why only a few make the sacrifice. But in the splash of their chaos there were several fine performances by Branch, Hudgins, and Young. A swimmer needs strength to power himself from race position to victory in a violent pool churning with competitors' efforts. The butterfly, the breaststroke, the freestyle, the backstroke, and diving, all take coordination, timing, and brawn.

Kelly, Hall and McDonald climbing out of the pool after practice session.

Team members are, French, Kelly, Branch, Hunter, McDonald, Hudgins, Mebane, Gable, Frew, Hall, and Young.

TRACK

The gun cracks and the violent whirl around the cinder track begins with a scratch of spikes in the trailing dust. On each of the sharp, banked turns the runner catches a blurred glimpse of those who run against him in the race. An elbow in the ribs can jolt him off stride; a poorly executed pass can lose his race. The pole-vaulter—pulling, straining, turning and pushing at the pole, rises above the eye level of the spectators.

Field men are, Wray, Chiles, Murray, Milton and Boggs.

Distance runners are Leslie, Hawes, Scales and Eckbert.

Co-captains Beebe and Kizer are with Coach Thrift.

The high jumper's brow creases with concentration as he measures his approach on the track that comes before the big jump. The relay hand-off is a flowing jumble as the tired runners offer the baton to the tense men who will carry it even farther. Time walks back, head bowed, from a defeat that took only seconds. The walk seems to last a long, long time. At Danston, the arena microcosm where the athletes are those you know, and perform just beyond your eyes, where one can see the world of Beebe, Cordle, Pharr, and many more.

Hurdlers are Bumgardner and Hamilton.

Pole vaulter Pharr get ready for a jump

Sprinters are Cordle, Beebe, Kizer and Laughlin.

BASEBALL

Coach Stevens worked with the players hard and relentlessly, preparing them for a rough season, hoping to better the previous season record of 7-13. But we asked, will it be another season of contrasts between stiletlike skills of the hitting cats and the bludgeoning power of the conference opponents? Can a team win delicately, with painful little slashes and stabs, or by slamming the balls like bullets over the outfield fence?

Tense and poised, the batter is ready to strike.

Russ Cotton, captain for the second straight year, leads a strong, versatile infield at third base. Harry Smith, developing into one of the best fielders, is at short, while Tuttle and Reynolds battle for second. Holcomb and Harris round out the infield at first. In the outfield Rusk, Hines, and Millar look strong while Cole, a catcher as well, and Metts, were scrapping for starting berths. Showalter will also move to the field when he is not on the mound. Again the key to the season lies in young, inexperienced pitching staff. Shelton, Showalter, and Daves possess experience and ability, but they cannot succeed without the help of Hamilton, Harris, and Jacques.

Coach Stevens and Captain Russ Cotton.

TENNIS

Year after year the tennis players display the grace and agility, power and endurance to compete in excellent Southern Conference tours. Coordination, body movement, a smashing serve, a magnificent return, a muffed shot, players alert and wary—all compose the elegant game of tennis. With a new coach, Semi Mintz, a new player, Cooper, and old faces, Orr and Lee, will it also be a new record?

Double team players are Orr and Lee.

GOLF

The crack of the driver, heard and seen better than ever at the University of Texas, is the sound of progress, too, most of them working the links out of the love of the game. They are the best of the best, the most competitive, tire and color. They are the players of the future, the stars of the future, the stars of the Southern Conference winter, summer and fall.

Team members, back to back, Club, Stanley, Evans, Rogers, McPherson, Bynum, Rustin, Keister, Finney, and Dallas.

FRESHMAN SPORTS

The Freshman athlete, the ex-high school All-American, the All-State, and All-Conference player, finds a new world of conflict where opponents are men of better or equal ability. The football squad had a doubtful season (1-3), but it was mixed with hopeful spirits for future games. Coxton seemed to have brought his own shoes and wouldn't need to fill any next year in Varsity competition. Blalock and Fuller will keep the present backs from getting senioritis, as will Smith, Billington, and Wall.

Director of Athletics

Cole, Rhyne, Fulp, Billington, McEver, Wall, Van Huse, Curlee, Emory, Fuller, Dole, and Day

Freshman track members are Pruitt, Gramley, Marquis, Steigner, Hart, Maddox, Spiro, and McCormack

INTRAMURALS

A dominant role is played by the intramural athletic activity in campus life, and therefore the intercollegiate sports picture is somewhat lessened at Davidson than in many other institutions. The Flickerball season was one of intense action, but the Kappa Sigs dominated the play by going undefeated in twelve contests.

A. T. O. Handball champions
Sledge and Manor.

S.A.E. Wrestling champions are: kneeling, Lucas, Fowler, Rorer; standing, McNary, Rude, and Calhoun.

Woods, Rogers, Cole, Almond, Henderson, Wyche, and Currie.

The Phi Delt's were second with a near perfect record of eleven victories and one defeat in the swimming. They took the S. A. E. took first in three places, while the second place Phi team and third place Beta, took most of the runner-up positions. Delta Kappa Epsilon took first place in three events to edge the S. A. E.'s 21-20 in the swimming. The Phi Delt's and Sigma Chi tied for third with 13 points each in the handball. The A. T. O.'s Tom Manor and George Sledge took the victor's laurel, while the basketball championship was shared by the S. A. E. and Phi Delta.

P. A. Swimming champions: Wright, Sharp, Weeks, and Sate.

JUNIORS

The oil streaks float on the rain
As the faces and names we take
Now shape on the surface-poise of doubt.

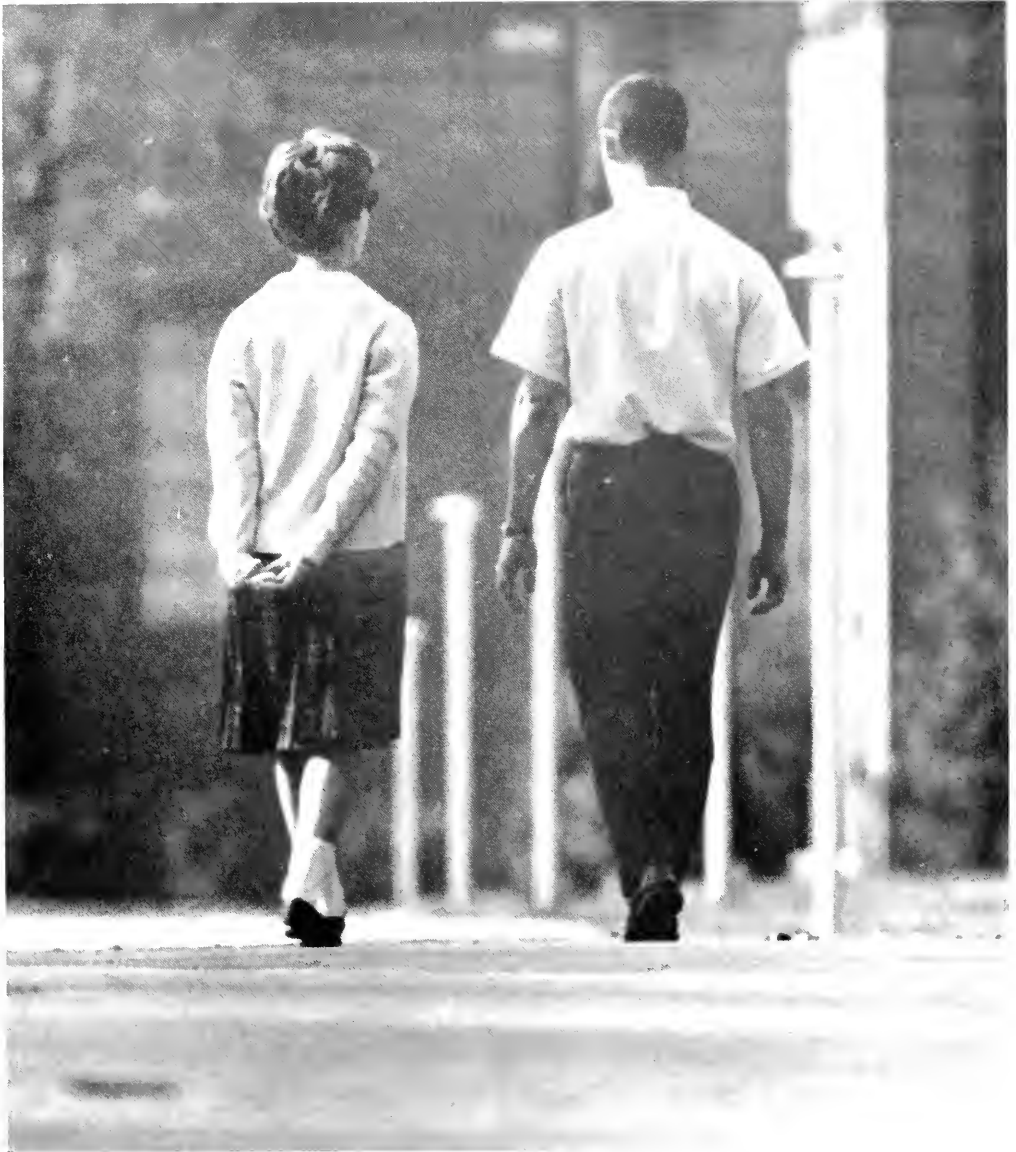

We spun into the crowded squares of praise to cease from seeing ourselves as ugly, to be accepted in the wrinkled lines under the eyes of people in the street—the streets of routine walks to the entrances and exits of days. To halt that weary running away in the brain, we asked of everything in the out-there world just this once to make us whole.

We came to our old teachers of words who became our companions in the long hours talked away in their tiny offices, filled with the books we hoped someday to read . . . to the studies that suddenly found meaning when we were free to choose them . . . to the few who came late to our rooms to wonder with us about the after-life on the nights we had too many thoughts to waste on that last-minute theme.

... to the girls we gave our pins and special dreams to ...

and sometimes just to anyone who seemed to have an answer we might use.

Late April came
With all her sudden tearing of the senses
All her gentle shredding of pretenses
And whispered in the smoke of showered streets
How foolishly we hurled
Into the existential clay
Before we asked the artist of his soul.

we remember the tawdry fake-romantic masquerade of dance weekends,
and the parties, and the weary,
sodden sunrise partings . . .

and we remember aimless walks through the afternoon, long night-time conversations, the slow and somehow satisfying sharing of our mutual self-analysis.

we remember her face . . . not beautiful,
but seeing only ours across a room . . .
and her voice, so small and distant over a telephone, so soft when she said goodnight . . . and her letters, a hasty scrawl on blue paper.

Remember us, O Girl, sitting at your table, pensive . . .

Remember, when you laugh,
our empty laughter . . .

Remember, silent at your book,
our awkward silences together . . .

Stop a moment!

Think of the frank and open face of invitation that you gave us . . .

Think of all our lies and poses . . .

Think of the wild loud nights we spent escaping ourselves and tame routine . . .

look at us from where you sit,
O Girl, O Memory.
we want you to see us
and remember us
and like us enough to return.
for we are worried lest we become no more than a memory to you.

SENIORS

SENIORS

We who have learned to love the words, now when we speak of ourselves have so few left to say. Somehow we just cannot ask any more for metaphors of life in general, when we only care to feel the clean, blunt facts of our own particular lives. We may not yet know who we are, but we can no longer beg the crowd to tell us.

A thousand, thousand years ago, we,
scowling, heard them ask:
When you grow up,
What are you going to be?

Hearing the question again, we only laugh, and say: When we grow up, then we are finally old enough to be vital statistics in the democratic election machine; and to kill the innocent in the sweet name of America the Beautiful; and to own a small suburban plot of cultivated ground. But do we laugh because we have given our answers in the years already promised to specified studies or trades?

Or do we laugh ironically as we realize the question's strange, sad commentary on a liberal education, and know now that it is a thousand, thousand years too late to run away and join the circus?

Phi Beta Kappa honors those students who have discovered the academic disciplines which effect the highest scholastic achievement.

A century and a half ago Phi Beta Kappa was founded on the William and Mary campus as the first Greek letter fraternity. Since then, it has evolved from a social society to an honorary fraternity. The North Carolina Gamma chapter was founded at Davidson in 1923.

As a national honor society for premedical students, Alpha Epsilon Delta encourages excellence in premedical scholarship and stimulates interest in studies connected with the practice of medicine. The society was founded at the University of Alabama, April 28, 1926. There are over 13,000 members in 64 active chapters throughout the United States. This year, A. E. D. supplemented the Union film committee with such double features as The Caesarean Delivery of Quadruplets and The Prefrontal Lobotomy—And You Were There.

Frank Donald Hobart

1896 - 1960

For thirty-six years, Mr. Don Hobart served Davidson as the college supervisor of buildings and grounds, in a labor of love which made Davidson's campus a showplace the year 'round.

When he came on the campus in 1925, Davidson was a place of muddy roads, sparse and unkempt grass and few flowers.

Mr. Hobart changed that.

He created the dogwood grove behind the Martin Science Building, and planted shrubbery all across the campus; he made a garden out of Davidson's eighty acres.

Students remember seeing the gentle smiling man tending his flowers behind Belk Dormitory, cutting the best blooms to place in vases at the College Union.

They remember his weary resignation upon seeing the new paths students made across freshly planted grass, his amusement when even bramblebushes didn't stop the pathmakers.

They remember a man dedicated to his work—and happy in it.

There is an old Latin inscription which translates, "If you seek his monument, look about you." No more fitting epitaph could be found for Mr. Hobart.

THE STUDENTS

No, we are not all the same . . .

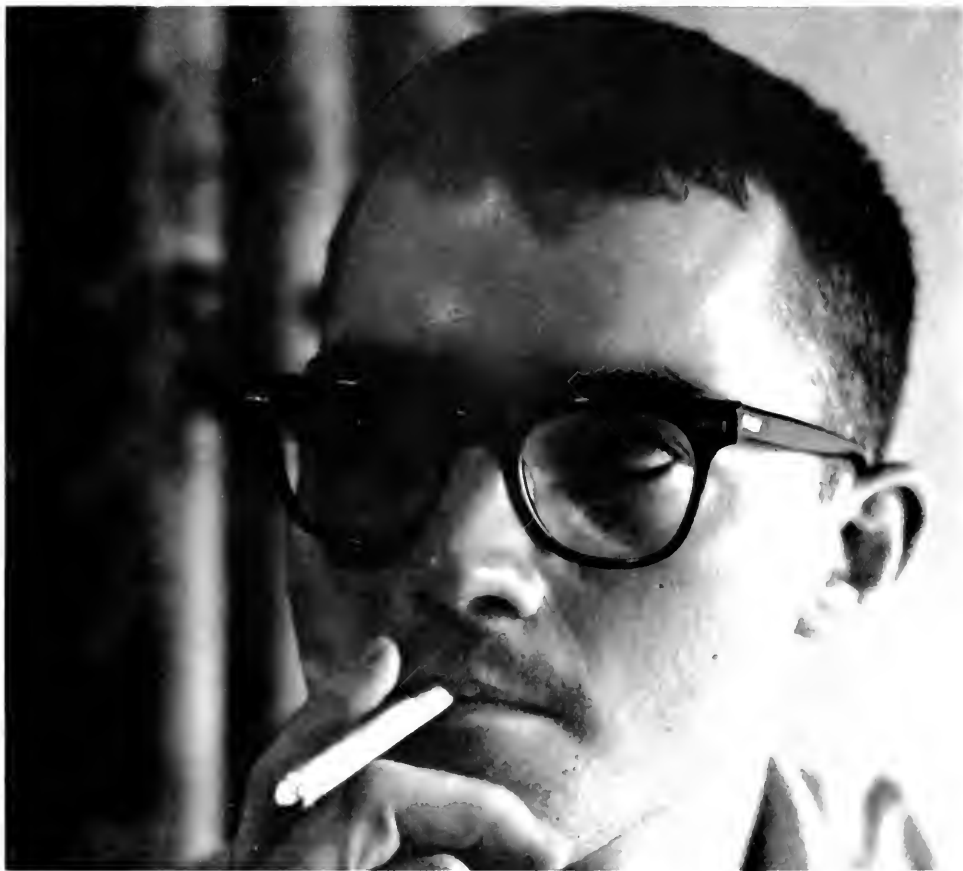

we have many different faces when alone.

But do we ever really look at each other hard enough to see the tiny riots in our eyes?

if these faces are only the amber curios in the shambles of our later recollections --

And what have we learned here in all our essential hoarding away of facts, or if we have never dared surrender a precious part of our finite selves to their sacred keep?

There was a poem, once, upon a beach, formed of the elements native to the land and to the sea. Some say it was a parable. If so, it told of all the quiet contradiction of steeples and shacks. And if not, it may still be a poem to close a book with.

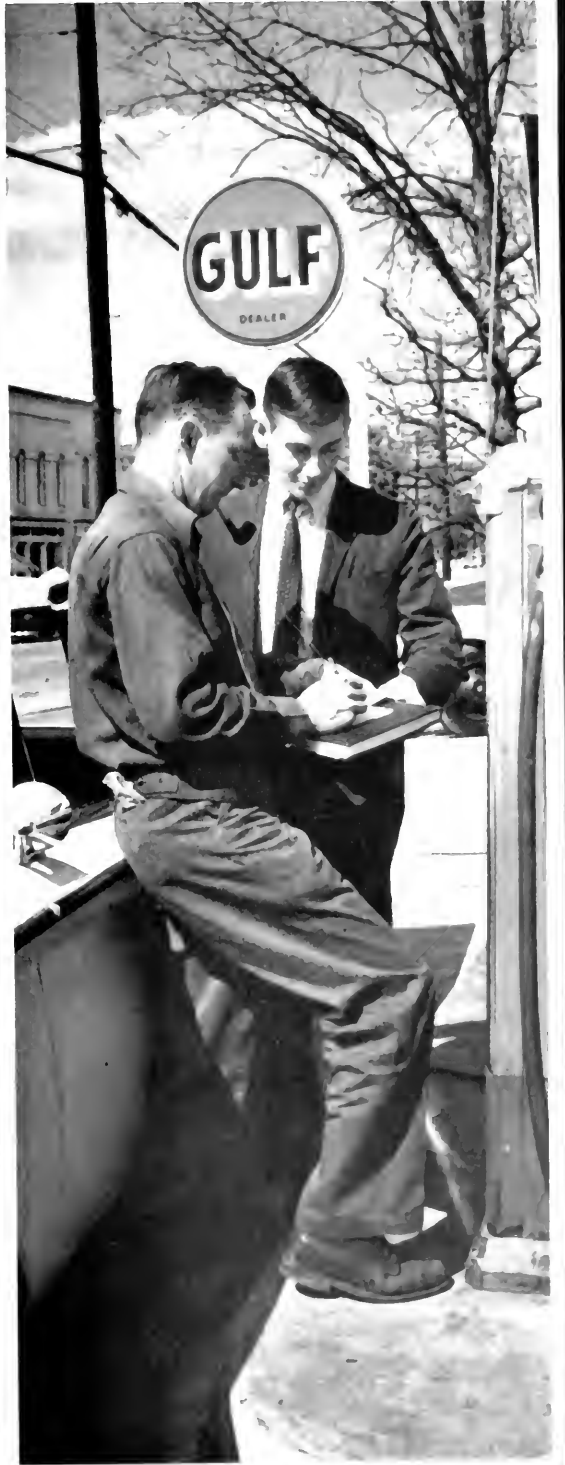

The piper birds stalked the beach
And looked for something to eat.
They hurried to the waves,
To the quick-sand fringe of the sea,
And found the sand fiddlers there.
For all of a summer afternoon,
From the hang-straight sun
To the lighting of the moon,
The flailing legs of the fiddlers
Snapped in the pipers' beaks.
The sun went out;
The moon oiled a streak up the sky;
And the wind came in from the sea that night,
To blow the fiddlers' shells away,
Like bones of moonlight down the beach.
Then the piper birds slowly, slowly
Walked away, fat.
Who, one asked, destroyed the fiddlers?
Some say the sea: she put them there.
And some say nature: she made them weak.
Does nothing, asked another, kill the pipers?
Some say the hawks do,
But if not, in enough impartial time,
They rot, and leave their feathers in the swamp.

Man, in the life's walk East from Eden, in the run of doubt down the raw furrows of the mind, finds, too, a portion of destruction. But man may create, and love, and be sustained. And if we are not all the same, how long must we allow the very trees and birds to mock us in the freedom to touch their own kind. Sometime before this little star we call our sun burns itself out, we must cross in the dispositions of our minds, customs, and classes, and tracks through the centers of towns, to know the sounds of our many different selves on the one day and night we share. If never this, then we are the bones of moonlight in the wind.
